One of the unique features of a cooperative is the payment of company profits to the patrons. In September of each year, the Medford Cooperative pays dividends to the customers who have done business with the company. Unlike a sole proprietorship, partnership or other corporation, the net earnings are distributed among the customers who make the company successful. Therefore, we pay you to purchase from us!

Dividends are paid on every purchase!

Our customers saved approximately 3¢ per gallon with patronage dividends. Since 2004, our customers have received over $4,895,725 in patronage dividends!

In essence, a cooperative is a business that is owned and controlled by the people who use and benefit from its' services.
